Alex,

Here are some pictures of the upper hatch stops that I have. Asking $10+shipping for both of them.

I have two end caps that are in about the same condition. Take a look at both and see if one would work for you. Asking $50+shipping for one.

Jon,

Sorry to be MIA, it's been a long week.

I've got a lead on hatch stops from a 96 parts truck in CO. Seller is asking $10+ship for the pair.

I'm willing to make the deal and have these shipped to you, provided you haven't found another solution already. I'd also request that, upon receipt, you return the $10 and change I initially sent to you for shipping. As I mentioned before, if I buy and send you these replacements, I'll have then spent about $30 (plus a lot of my personal time with the post office/parts sellers) to send you the parts you're looking for with nothing in return. I understand that you're not responsible for the post office mess but, even though it's the holidays and the spirit of giving yada yada, I'd prefer to walk away from this spending as little as possible.

Please let me know if you'd like me to make this deal. Alternatively, you can probably contact the guy yourself and buy the brackets off him. His email is below and, if you want to contact him, I'll let him know I'm no longer looking to buy.

Thanks,
Alex

Alex,

Since I have not heard from you for several days, I purchased a set of stops from Jason at Cruiseryard.com. They were $10 shipped. I would appreciate you picking up the cost for those and that will satisfy the terms of our transaction.

I'm sorry that either the USPS lost the package or it is lost somewhere in your building, however I have no doubt that it will turn up eventually and you will have your mounts. That being said, I am willing to help you open a case with the USPS regarding this if that is the direction you wish to go.
